

Biography

Fadi Choucair is the senior embryologist at the American University of Beirut Medical Center and coordinator of the MEFS embryology special interest group. He holds a PhD in the field of transcriptomics and reproductive epigenetics from the University of Cote d'Azur, France.

Dr. Choucair is a faculty member at the Lebanese University teaching pathophysiology of male sexual function, embryo cell signaling, research methodology and cell cycle. He also provides lectures for medical residents at the American University of Beirut. His research interests include sperm epigenome and oxidative stress.